Referencing

What is referencing?

Referencing is indicating in assignments when you have used material that has not originated with you. This might include factual information, data, images, opinion, direct quotation, or when you summarise or paraphrase the work of other people.

Why reference?

The majority of academic assignments measure your ability to understand, analyse and evaluate the work of others. Consequently, referencing is a crucial part of this as it informs the reader of the texts you have consulted during research; you will also be assessed on the quality and relevancy of these sources. It is important to remember that referencing carries a percentage of the overall marks if undertaken appropriately.

Plagiarism – academic integrity

Please see this page in Unilife for more information about plagiarism and good academic practice:
<http://unilife.southwales.ac.uk/pages/3168>

How to reference

There are a number of different referencing styles, all of which are equally valid. Always check with your lecturer if you are unsure which style you should be using.

The example on page 3 shows how to reference (cite) using the Harvard style of referencing. This is one of the most widely used systems based on the British Standard BS5605 (1990). The basic requirements for incorporating references into your work are to supply the family name of the author (or authoring body) and the year of publication in sentences and paragraphs.

Where in your text you do this is the first component of the referencing system (in-text referencing). The second component is the full details of all references you have used given in a list at the end of your assignment. Both components have to be included in any submitted piece of work.

How to use this guide

This guide highlights some of the sources that can be referred to when writing an assignment. The various referencing requirements for each source are presented and include an in-text and reference list example. However, the guide does not include all possible sources that you might encounter during the course of your studies. Please seek advice from your lecturer, the Study Skills Service, or your Faculty Advice Centre if you need guidance that does not feature here.

There are several ways of including sources in your work. You can summarise, paraphrase or directly quote the information. You may also wish to secondary reference and/or refer to an author with more than one publication in a single year. Whichever you use, you let your reader know by setting out the referencing details in a subtly different way as below.

Please note that the guide presents information in columns. References in text or in a list should be written across the full page when writing your assignment.

Summarising

If you are summarising the overall argument or position of a book or article then you only need to insert the author's name and year of publication, you do not need to put page numbers in the text or in the reference list.

Paraphrasing

If you are paraphrasing a specific point from your source you should include page numbers in the text, as well as the author's name and year. This makes it easier for your reader to find the information being referred to.

An example of a referenced paragraph and referencing list

| Text | Sources |
|--|--|
| Students, as Northedge (1990) summarises, have to read a lot of often complex material, interpret it and present this in their work to demonstrate understanding of their topic. It is imperative that students are fully engaged in the reading process as not understanding “how to read, what to read and how to make sense of your reading can be a major worry and barrier” especially for new students (Blaxter, Hughes and Tight, 2006, p.99). According to Bell (2005, p.61) the majority of reading should begin early on in the research process, adding that effective organisational skills will help ensure that reading does not overwhelm students. It is important then that students are able to identify and select relevant information, in order to have a clear understanding of the issues to be discussed (Cottrell, 2008; Bell, 2005; Denscombe, 1998). | Bell, J. Short quotation

In-text example

Chartrand, Millar and Wiltshire (1997, p.1) argue that “...they [laws] can be said to be just when they create the conditions leading to peace, happiness and prosperity for all persons”. This view is...

Reference example:

Chartrand, M., Millar, C. and Wiltshire, E. (1997) English for contract and company law. London: Sweet and Maxwell.

Note

Short quotations, up to two or three lines should be put in double quotation marks and included in the body of the text.

Long quotation

In-text example

Most people are biased in one way or another. Person bias, sometimes called the fundamental attribution error, is claimed to be the most common.

So we see a nurse, or a teacher or a policeman or policewoman going about their business and tend to judge them as being particular types of people rather than as people being constrained by the roles that they are playing in their work. (Strongman, 2006, p. 94).

Reference example:

Strongman, K. T. (2006) Applying psychology to everyday life: a beginner's guide. Chichester: John Wiley and Sons Ltd.

Note

Longer quotations should be indented from the main text as a separate paragraph. Quotation marks are not required.

Secondary referencing

In-text example

McMahon's (1994) experience as cited in Parahoo (2006, p. 246) draws attention to the dilemma surrounding the issue of persuasion when attempting to recruit participants.

Reference example:

Parahoo, K. (2006) Nursing research: principles, process and issues. 2nd edn. Basingstoke: Palgrave Macmillan.

Note

Sometimes authors refer to the work/ideas of others. These are known as secondary references. For instance, Parahoo in 2006 makes reference to McMahon's experience in 1994. The details of Parahoo's work should be included in the reference list since this is the work you have read. (It is not advisable to use too many of these).

Author with more than one publication in the same year

In-text example

Most false-belief tests use children with a mental age of 3-4 years but all those children with autism tested had a mental age higher than this (Baron-Cohen, 1989a). In a further experiment (Baron-Cohen, 1989b) children with autism were asked what they thought the brain was for.

Reference example:

Baron-Cohen, S. (1989a) 'The autistic child's theory of mind: A case of specific developmental delay', Journal of Child Psychology and Psychiatry, 30, pp. 285-298.

Baron-Cohen, S. (1989b) 'Are autistic children behaviourists? An examination of their mental-physical and appearance-reality distinctions', Journal of Autism and Developmental Disorders, 19, pp. 579-600.

Note

If you need to cite two (or more) publications by an author published in the same year, you will need to distinguish between them in the text and in the reference list. You do this by allocating lower case letters in alphabetical order after the publication date.

How to reference books

Book with single author

In-text example:

Thompson (2003) suggests that language helps to form identity, but can create stereotypes and prejudices.

Reference example:

Thompson, N. (2003) Communication and language: a handbook of theory and practice. Basingstoke: Palgrave Macmillan.

Reference order:

1. Author /editor (surname or family name before initials)
2. Year of publication (in round brackets)
3. Title (in italics)
4. Edition (only include the edition number if it is not the first edition)
5. Place of publication: Publisher
6. Series and volume number (where relevant)

Book with two or three authors

In-text example:

According to Dexter and Wash (1995, pp. 32-33) "silence may be as effective as verbal communication" if used appropriately.

Reference example:

Dexter, G. and Wash, M. (1995) Psychiatric nursing skills: a patient centred approach. 2nd edn. London: Chapman and Hall.

Reference order:

1. Author(s) / editor(s) (surname or family name before initials)
2. Year of publication (in round brackets)
3. Title (in italics)
4. Edition (only include the edition number if it is not the first edition) (2nd edn.)
5. Place of publication: Publisher
6. Series and volume number (where relevant)

Book with more than three authors

In-text example:

This was indicated in the study by Huxley et al. (2007).

Reference example:

Huxley, P., Evans, S., Muroe, M. and Cestari, L. (2007) Fair access to care services in integrated mental health and social care teams. London: Department of Health.

Reference order:

1. Author(s) / editor(s) (surname or family name before initials)
2. Year of publication (in round brackets)
3. Title (in italics)
4. Edition (only include the edition number if it is not the first edition)
5. Place of publication: Publisher
6. Series and volume number (where relevant)

Chapter/section in an edited book

In-text example

Cohen (2009, p.194) describes the subculture of the delinquent gang as short-run hedonism.

Reference example:

Cohen, A.K. (2009) 'Delinquent boys: the culture of the gang', in Newburn, T. (ed.) Key readings in criminology. Cullompton: Willan Publishing, pp. 194-198.

Reference order:

1. Author(s) of the chapter/section (surname or family name before initials)
2. Year of publication (in round brackets)
3. Title of chapter/section (in single quotation marks)
4. 'in' plus author(s)/editor(s) of book
5. Title of book (in italics)
6. Edition (only include the edition number if it is not the first edition)
7. Place of publication: Publisher
8. Page reference of chapter or section

Book with editor(s)

In-text example:

Many aspects of school management are discussed in Spencer (2007).

Reference example:

Spencer, J. (ed.) (2007) School management and finance opportunities and problems. London: Ford Publishers. Financial Education Series, 23.

Reference order:

1. Editor(s) followed by (ed.) or (eds.) (surname or family name before initials)
 2. Year of publication (in round brackets)
 3. Title (in italics)
 4. Edition (only include the edition number if it is not the first edition)
 5. Place of publication: Publisher
 6. Series and volume number (where relevant)

Lines within a play

In-text example

"I prithee do not mock me fellow student" (Shakespeare, 1980, 1.2:177).

Reference example

Shakespeare, W. (1980) Hamlet. Edited by Spencer, T.J.B. London: Penguin. 1.2:177.

Reference order:

1. Author of play (surname or family name before initials)
 2. Year of publication (in round brackets)
 3. Title (in italics)
 4. Edition (only include the edition number if it is not the first edition)
 5. Edition information if relevant eg Edited by (surname followed by initials)
 6. Place of publication: Publisher
 7. Act. Scene: line

E-book

In-text example

Increasingly complex and refined electrical systems have had a significant impact on the changing form of telecommunications (Anttalainen, 2003).

Reference example

Anttalainen, T. (2003) Introduction to telecommunication network engineering. NetLibrary [Online]. Available at: <http://www.netlibrary.com> (Accessed: 20 June 2011).

Reference order:

1. Author(s)/editor(s) (surname or family name before initials)
2. Year of publication of book (in round brackets)
3. Title of book (in italics)
4. Edition (only include the edition number if it is not the first edition)
5. Name of e-book collection (in italics)
6. [Online]
7. Available at: URL
8. (Accessed: date)

E-books often lack page numbers, so use the chapter, section or location number to identify the quote or the specific point you are paraphrasing. Place page numbers, if available, after the date in the in-text reference

E-Book via an e-book reader eg Kindle

In-text example

According to Forsyth (2011, Location 532 of 5144) "Our word sky comes from the Viking word for cloud, but in England there's simply no difference between the two concepts, and so the word changed its meaning because of the awful weather."

Reference example

Forsyth, M. (2011) The etymologicon: a circular stroll through the hidden connections of the English language. Kindle format [e-book reader]. Available at: <http://www.amazon.co.uk> (Accessed: 20 January 2012).

Reference order:

1. Author(s)/editor(s) (surname or family name before initials)
2. Year of publication (in round brackets) (use the publication date of the version being used)
3. Title of book (in italics)
4. Edition (only include the edition number if it is not the first edition)
5. E book format (Kindle format, ePub format, Adobe ebook format etc)
6. [e-book reader]
7. Available at: URL
8. (Accessed: date)

How to reference journals

Journal article (printed)

In-text example:

According to Fritsch and Schroeter (2011, p. 383) "recent empirical research strongly indicates that the effect of new business formation on economic development is of a long-term nature".

Reference example:

Fritsch, M. and Schroeter, A. (2011) 'Why does the effect of new business formation differ across regions?', Small Business Economics: An Entrepreneurship Journal, 36(4), pp. 383-400.

Reference order:

1. Author(s) (surname or family name before initials)
2. Year of publication (in round brackets)
3. Title of article (in single quotation marks)
4. Title of journal (in italics – capitalise first letter of each word in title except for linking words such as and, of, the, for)
5. Issue information i.e. volume (unbracketed) and where applicable, part number, month or season (all in round brackets)
6. Page numbers

Journal article in an online collection eg Science Direct (e-journal)

In-text example:

Langhammer and Stanghelle (2009, p. 46) found that "Stroke care has changed over the last 20 years".

Reference example:

Langhammer, B. and Stanghelle, J.K. (2009) 'Exercise on a treadmill or walking outdoors', Clinical Rehabilitation, 24(1), pp. 46-54. Sage Journals [Online]. Available at: <http://cre.sagepub.com> (Accessed: 15 July 2010).

Reference order:

1. Author(s) (surname or family name before initials)
2. Year of publication (in round brackets)
3. Title of article (in single quotation marks)
4. Title of journal (in italics – capitalise first letter of each word in title except for linking words such as and, of, the, for)
5. Volume (unbracketed) issue (in round brackets) page numbers if known
6. Name of collection (in italics)
7. [Online]
8. Available at: URL of collection
9. (Accessed: date)

Often an online journal will be part of an online journal collection which is made available through USW's web pages. The name of the collection should be included in the reference. Some journals are published solely on the Internet by a commercial publisher. Open access journals are made available online without the involvement of a commercial publisher and often with no charge or subscription, the name of the open access archive should be included in the reference.

This information is relevant to the online (e-journal) examples

Journal article in an internet journal (e-journal)

In-text example:

One author, Demers (2009) has claimed there is "virtually no research".

Reference example:

Demers, A. (2009) 'The war at home: consequences of loving a veteran of the Iraq and Afghan wars,' The Internet Journal of Mental Health, 6(1) [Online]. Available at: <http://www.ispub.com/> (Accessed: 15 July 2010).

Reference order:

1. Author(s) (surname or family name before initials)
2. Year of publication (in round brackets)
3. Title of article (in single quotation marks)
4. Title of journal (in italics and capitalise first letter of each word in title, except for linking words such as and, of, the, for)
5. Volume (unbracketed), issue or month/season (in round brackets) and page numbers if known.

Animals (Cruel Poisons) Act 1962 (10 & 11 Eliz. 2, c.26).

Reference order:

1. Short title of Act and Year (in italics)
2. Regnal year
3. Name of sovereign
4. Chapter number

UK Statutes (Acts of Parliament) post 1963

In-text example

Public outrage over attacks by dogs led to the introduction of the statute (Great Britain. Dangerous Dogs Act 1991).

Reference example:

Great Britain. Dangerous Dogs Act 1991: Elizabeth II. Chapter 65 (1991) London: The Stationary Office.

Reference order:

1. Great Britain
2. Name of Act (use short title): name of sovereign. Chapter number (in italics)
3. Year of publication (in round brackets)
4. Place of publication: publisher.

When referencing government publications the recognised convention is to use Great Britain rather than United Kingdom.

Publications from the Scottish and Welsh governments should be prefaced with either Scotland or Wales respectively.
